Smash Into Metz Fort

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP)—American Third Army troops captured three corners of moated Ft. Driant, strongest bastion of the fortress ring guarding Metz, by assault today and their First Army comrades 125 miles to the north shoved deeper through backstop defenses guarding the Rhine and Cologne.

The First Army, battling hastily gathered German reserves, had severed a main escape road north of Aachen, and was cutting off that ruined stronghold in developing the breach torn in the West Wall defenses.

Ft. Driant, on the Moselle river's west bank, was yielding after a two-day battle. Doughboys in the final hours were burning out the last Germans by setting fire to crude oil sprayed into tunnels of the fortifications.

Seven miles north of Metz, other units seized Mazieres les Metz and high ground on the Moselle's west bank along the Luxembourg-German frontier.

Lt.-Gen. Hodges's First Army struck on east of Ubach, taken in breeching the Siegfried line. Its units fought along and across the main northeast road from Aachen to Gladbach. Aachen already was flanked on the south.

A front dispatch said the First Army still was gaining on this third day of its new offensive and the Germans were reforming stragglers into new battle groups.

On the Dutch front, British troops repulsed a German attack north of Nijmegen, and Allied forces at Overloon to the southeast cut down half of the Germans who mounted an assault there. In Belgium slow advances were scored northeast of Antwerp.

On the southern sector in France, the U. S. Seventh Army took three villages northeast of Epinal.

The penetration of the Siegfried line at Ubach did not yet amount to a break-through, which is defined militarily as widening of a gap through which assaulting troops could fan out behind the whole defensive system. The first Siegfried penetration southeast of Aachen—made Sept. 15—has not yet been exploited into such a breakthrough.

Weather again today interfered with aerial support of the Aachen front battle.

The right flank of Lt. Gen. Patton's Third Army, beat off a German tank and infantry counterattack near Angelmont, five miles southwest of Baccarat, and gained a mile or more through the Forest of Parroy southeast of Nancy.

WESTERN FRONT—Yanks smash the Siegfried Line north of Aachen, taking Ubach and Rimburg and opening a four-mile gap through which our forces are driving to outflank Aachen. This drive is aimed toward a junction with Yanks who blasted the first gap in the line in the Stolberg area.

YUGOSLAVIA—Arrows locate Red Army drives, including a new advance into Yugoslavia which captured Petrovgrad and Ulma. Along the earlier established Yugo front the Russians took Rudna Glava. Reds also took Reghin in northern Romania and Klimiec in southern Poland.

Yank Fliers Battle on From Lone China Base

By Associated Press

American warplanes crowded into their only remaining air base in southeast China maintained a constant attack on threatening Japanese columns today while U. S. bombers in the Pacific, operating from an ever-increasing number of fields, smashed "the most lucrative strategic target in the Pacific"—Borneo's Balikpapan oil center.

The plight of American airmen driven from half a dozen evacuated fields to the Liuchow airdrome lent support to Tokyo propaganda broadcasts that "this is to be a long war."

Other Japanese broadcasts told of the deaths of seven more Japanese rear admirals and indicated the Filipinos would not fight American invasion forces. Tokyo has reported the death of 19 admirals within a month.

Gen. MacArthur, who is expected to lead the Philippine invasion, announced 66 of his Army Liberators had scored telling blows and left huge fires raging at Balikpapan, Japan's "most important source of gasoline and lubricating oils."

The Liberators, from the 13th Air Force's "Bomber Barons," fought their way through 30 interceptors to loose 74 tons of explosives on the Pandansari gasoline refraction towers and the paraffin refinery.

American combat planes were reported taking off or landing on the crowded Liuchow landing strips at the rate of about one a minute. Japanese bombers attack the base every night.

Cholera broke out among thousand of refugees pouring through the town in flight from the southeast and northeast. Most of the refugees came by train from the Kweilin area. Space in the packed trains not occupied by humans was filled with household goods and rice.

Loss of Liuchow might affect the stream of some 20,000 tons of military supplies that President Roosevelt reported were being flown into China each month.

The latest seven dead Jap admirals were identified as Kanichi Hagihara, Sorokuro Morine, Tosajuro Ogura, Fuji Arimura, Shizuo Akasawa, Ryo Mori and Seiko Mikamoto. The broadcast gave no details of how they died.

20,000 Evacuated In Dunkirk Truce

By WILLIAM F. BONI

CANADIAN FIRST ARMY HEADQUARTERS, France, Oct. 4 (AP)—In the cold gray dawn today, 20,000 haggard civilians started evacuating Dunkirk, last channel port held by Germany, under a truce which will expire at 6 a. m. Friday. The Canadians and British then will resume their attacks.

The French started leaving the port at 6 a. m., after a 12-hour preliminary armistice.

After the period for withdrawal an additional 12-hour truce will prevail during which the road will be dynamited and mined before hostilities are resumed.

Evacuation of the civilians through British infantry lines is in strangest contrast to the bloody withdrawal of the British expeditionary force from Dunkirk under fire and bomb in 1940.

The armistice terms were agreed upon at a conference yesterday between representatives of British and German commanders. There was a strong likelihood that the enemy, 5s at Calais, will be ready to surrender shortly after cessation of the truce, although the garrison of 15,000 Nazis is about twice as large as that of Calais.

Dunkirk, 40 miles northwest of Lille, had a normal peacetime population of 35,000. In peace, its port could accommodate vessels up to 16,000 tons drawing 32½ feet of water.

Reds in U. S. Jeeps Advance To Within 20 Miles of Belgrade

By DANIEL DE LUCE

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (AP)—Russian machinegunners in American jeeps, with Yugoslav Partisans as guides, speared westward along the Danube less than 20 miles from Belgrade today.

Nearly all Yugoslav territory east of the big elbow formed by the Danube and Tisza rivers was reported swept clean of German resistance by Red army forces advancing like a flood from the foothills of the Transylvania Alps.

Scouts of Marshal Tito's army ferried across the Danube to meet the Russians on the northern bank and help lead them westward toward the Yugoslav capital, field dispatches said.

While still hammering at the frontiers of Hungary, Marshal Malinovsky shifted a powerful armored task force from southwestern Romania with the assignment to free the Yugoslav capital.

The rich farming country of the Yugoslavia Romania border fell in one swoop to the Russian push, which drove the disorganized Germans back as much as 30 miles in 24 hours.

If the Russian pace is maintained, Belgrade may see a Red Army victory parade before the week-end.

Malinovsky's main force was approaching from the northeast. A thrust to the eastward was driving for the Greece-Belgrade railway.

A Russian objective of even greater strategic importance was the drive to defeat Hungary—gateway into southeastern Germany. New successes were scored against enemy troops in northern Transylvania.

Cleaning up the North Baltic, Marshal Govorov's Leningrad army captured the Estonian island of Hiiu (Dago), one of two major island bastions commanding the approaches to the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Riga.

Fumigation Kills Baby, Many Flee

A 2-year-old girl died in her frightened mother's arms today, while dozens of unknowing but suddenly sick apartment neighbors staggered from their beds to gasp for air at windows of the Boston Housing Authority project, Polk and Medford sts., Charlestown.

A few minutes later, 100 residents of the Polk st. wing were fleeing to the street in the early dark, some to search frantically for doctors as they retched and stumbled in bewilderment.

The nightmarish visitation fell upon the project's residents only a few hours after a fumigating company had finished work in the wing with a type of tear gas its officials said had been used regularly.

Dead was little Anne Frances Mahan, who was to have had a birthday party yesterday, with a pretty new dress, dolls, a big cake and the company of her playmates. It had been postponed because the fumigators were coming.

At City Hospital, under treatment for inhalation of toxic fumes, were:

Anne's mother, Mrs. Rita Mahan, 26, wife of an absent soldier.

The Mahan twins, Rita, Jr., and Gerard, Jr., six.

Their eight-month-old brother, James Joseph.

Mrs. Mary Getz, 24.

Mrs. Margaret O'Brien.

At least a score of others were under the care of physicians.

The Red Cross, meanwhile, was trying to contact PFC Gerard Mahan at Ft. McClellan, Ala., and make arrangements for him to fly home to his stricken family.

An investigation was under way by the Boston Housing Authority, U. S. Public Health officials, police and Medical Examiner William J. Brickley.

Many thoroughly scared residents of the Polk st. wing at the project were still huddling in the courtyard at 9 o'clock this morning, too fearful to return after their flight of four hours before.

'Happy Warrior' Al Smith, 70, Dies

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith, 70, native of New York city's East Side, four times governor of New York State and 1928 Democratic presidential candidate, died today. Death came at 6:20 a. m. in Rockefeller Institute. Dr. Raymond P. Sullivan, his physician, said lung congestion and acute heart failure were the causes. He had been transferred to the Institute Sept. 23 from St. Vincent's Hospital where he had been treated for an intestinal and liver disturbance since Aug. 10.

Only last night a dozen red roses arrived at the hospital for him from President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The close political and personal friendship between Mr. Roosevelt and Smith cooled in 1936 when Smith took what he called "a walk" from Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic party and supported Alf Landon for the presidency. He again opposed the New Deal in 1940, stumping for the Republican candidate, Wendell L. Willkie.

Smith had not taken an active part in politics in recent years, devoting himself instead to management of the Empire State building and aiding in bond drives and other civic activities.

A prominent Catholic, Smith knew he was dying "and was praying all the time," said the Rev. John Healy, his pastor, who was present when death came. Fr. Healy said Smith "passed on peacefully." His death occurred five months to the day from the death of his wife, Catherine Dunn Smith.

A few minutes after he died Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, a son and daughter-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Quillinan, a son-in-law and daughter, and Mrs. Emily Warner, a daughter, arrived at the hospital.

Besides the three named, two other children survive him: Capt. Alfred E., Jr., with the U. S. Army in the South Pacific, and Walter Smith; also a sister, Mrs. Mary Glynn, and 14 grandchildren.

Smith, known for his brown derby, cigar and ever-present smile, rose from humble surroundings on Manhattan's East Side to a place where he never was out of the public eye.

He was defeated for the presidency in 1928 by Herbert Hoover. Although he carried only eight states, he received 41.2 per cent of the total vote.

Born Dec. 30, 1873, the Happy Warrior—a nickname given him by Franklin D. Roosevelt when he nominated Smith at the 1923 Democratic national convention—had little formal education.

He entered politics at the age of 22 as a clerk and subpoena server for the commissioner of jurors. In 1903 he was elected a state assemblyman. He served 12 years at Albany, N. Y., becoming

Stork Observes Diaper Week By Overburdening 2 Services

By PAULINE WARREN

No matter what the war brings, it is still not cataclysmic enough to cause a cessation of an endearing American custom—the designating of this or that week to be celebrated with appropriate fanfare.

This current week, for instance, is National Diaper Week—no kidding. A national Diaper Institute, somewhere in New York, has designated it as such, and although babies can not be consulted regarding this most indispensable article of their apparel, they probably will find that various things have happened to their three-cornered pants by the time the meetings, lectures, demonstrations, luncheons and teas are over.

But Boston is lagging behind in the diaper celebration. The two diaper services here trying to keep up with the rising birthrate are too hectically busy to do much about it.

"Listen," answered Jack Shepard, president-owner of one of them, when asked what he was doing to commemorate the occasion "every week is Diaper Week with us. We have over two thousand people on our waiting list.

"We're doing the best we can, but we just can't cope with the invasion of babies Boston is having. The Army and the Navy are making terrific Commando raids on our supplies—thousands of servicemen are sent to be trained here and all of them seem to become fathers at once.

"Commanders, lieutenant commanders, ensigns, colonels, majors, captains, privates, sailors and even generals and admirals come in here and tell us we have to rescue them from diaper washing or they won't go out and save our country for us.

"Good gosh—even the FBI was in here this morning!

"We've been in this business for seven years but there has never been anything like this year.

"We try to give service people first place—what else can we do? All those young officers being trained at Harvard, MIT and other colleges around here are living in such cramped quarters that sometimes the baby's crib is a bureau drawer. Surely they need help worse than anyone else."

Both services explain the birth rate increase is carried on also by their old customers.

"We have a terrific amount of repeat customers on our books," one of them said. "There's one woman who calls us up each year on the dot and says: 'Well, here I am again.' Four years in a row!"

The services also hear about blessed events long before Winchell does. For instance, on the books right now are many reservations for next May.

P. S.—Just as we were going to press Mr. Shepard called back and said: "I just called the Red Cross and donated diapers—slightly worn, you understand—for their needy families. That's what I'm doing for Diaper Week."

Dewey Raps Tax Tangle As Postwar Roadblock

By JACK BELL

ALBANY, Oct. 4 (AP)—His sights fixed on an annual postwar national income of $150,000,000,000 Gov. Dewey stood committed today to a program of cutting peacetime taxes on individuals and businesses if the Republicans win in November.

The Republican presidential nominee, in a nationwide radio address, called for simplification of what he termed "our existing, confused and complicated tax laws" which he said threatened to form a roadblock in the way of postwar progress.

In his first exclusively radio talk of the campaign, the New York Governor asserted that the annual cost of government—considering the likelihood of a $300,000,000,000 National debt and the necessity of maintaining "adequate armed forces"—would require Federal levies far above prewar levels.

"But it is utterly impossible to suppose that we can support our government by levying heavy taxes upon a dwindling National income," he declared.

"Our first aim," he continued, "must be to increase our national income by putting to work all of the productive resources of our country—industry, labor and agriculture. It is far better to have a low tax rate with a national income of $150,000,000,000 than a national income of $76,000,000,000 and a high tax rate, as we had under the New Deal at its peacetime best."

His first step, Dewey said, would be to urge revision of personal exemptions "so that the man who makes as little as $11 a week no longer has an income tax taken out of his pay envelope."

"However necessary these taxes may be in wartime," he declared, "there can be no excuse for them in peace."

Dewey said the people "cheerfully pay high taxes to meet the cost of the war."

"But the taxes we are paying today are not just for war," he added. "They also go to pay for the waste and extravagance of the sprawling bureaucracy built up by the New Deal in these last 12 years."

Individual tax rates, which take "at least 23 cents out of every taxable dollar after credit for dependents," would slow up our recovery after the war if they were continued, he argued. He said also that special wartime taxes on business almost amounted to confiscation and must be lowered when peace comes.

Remarking "it has reached a point where every time a woman powders her face there is a tax of 20 per cent on the powder," he proposed eventual elimination of all excise levies except those on alcoholic beverages, tobacco and gasoline.

Dewey complained that some of the "cows now on the books had been used to keep Americans from getting ahead.

"How in the world can people plan ahead when they don't know from one month to the next what their taxes are going to be?" he demanded.

Leaders Rally Forces to Fight Anti-N. E. Reconversion Plan

Governors of six New England states and leaders in the area's industries today joined hands for an all-out battle against the proposal by Southern and Western senators that government-owned war plants be shut down here while those in the rest of the nation be permitted to start production of civilian goods.

The plan, proposed by a Senate committee that includes no New Englanders in its membership, was branded on every hand as rank sectionalism. Democrats and Republicans agreed that the plan must be crushed at once.

Gov. Saltenstall termed it "characteristic of Hitler" and a move to force post-war industry toward the west and south.

Among the many who decried such a plan was Alfred C. Fuller, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Ass'n, who said:

"Reconversion should be affected in the order in which industry was brought into the war program, and the speed of reconversion should depend on war requirements."

Democratic Gov. McGrath of Rhode Island was quick to support Republican Gov. Saltonstall of Massachusetts, declaring: "Along with every good American I despise the spirit of sectionalism. I stand ready to work with all the New England governors to protect our common interests."

Gov. Sewall of Maine said: "We should avoid any sectionalism in this matter (reconversion) and look forward to maintaining full employment throughout the country."

"This sort of legislation would tend to take away the last vestige of free enterprise," Gov. Wills of Vermont declared, and Gov. Blood of New Hampshire asserted "the freeze would do away with that which has made America great, namely, private initiative and the results of efficient management."

Mayor Tobin gave the opinion that "New England has nothing to worry about. Chairman Krug of the War Production Board has already set forth a policy of reconversion.

Bricker on Air At 9:30 Tonight

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker came to town today to see the opening game of the World Series and to speak over a nation-wide radio network.

"Getting here on series day was just a coincidence, of course," the Republican candidate for Vice-President joked as his special train ended a run from Centralia, Ill., where he spoke last night to the largest crowd of his campaign.

The Ohio Governor, an ardent baseball fan, was a catcher on the Ohio State University team more than 20 years ago.

Bricker will speak over NBC from the St. Louis Auditorium at 9:30 p. m. (Boston time) in the first of four country-wide broadcasts scheduled for his four-week Western campaign tour.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mrs. Ray Lepovetsky has patronized Willie Lee's laundry for 12 years, always has approved his work, but now:

She mislaid her laundry ticket and Lee refused to give up the bundle, she told police.

"Willie knows me and my laundry as well as he does the back of his own hand," she added.

Said the sympathetic but philosophical sergeant: "The police, FBI, Army, Navy and Marines can't help you. Nobody has ever been able to get anywhere in a Chinese laundry without a ticket."

Fumes

Those who dared to enter kept their windows open wide.

They said they had been ordered to evacuate from the fumigators at 8 a. m. yesterday and complied. They had been assured they could return safely at 7 p. m., they stated.

Joseph M. Ward, a manager for the Boston Housing Authority, reached the scene at 7:45 a. m. He said he had been notified at 6:30. Ward toured the wing to make sure everyone was out. He said the fumigating had been done by a Mattapan firm.

Ward reported the fumigating company had used a "type of tear gas" which had been found effective and safe in previous jobs.

This was repeated by a spokesman for the company, who said the wing should have been perfectly safe for reoccupancy at 7 p. m. last night.

Mrs. Mahan had taken her little family yesterday to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Rita Costello, of Dorchester st., South Boston. She brought them back at 7 p. m., she told police later.

Soon afterward, she related, she felt unusually weary, but thought it was nothing more serious than fatigue. She said:

"The windows were open when we came home. It was cold, so I closed them. We went to bed early. Some time in the night I noticed little Anne was fretful. I got up and saw her eyes were open, but they had a glazed appearance. I decided to get a doctor, but we have no telephone, so I went to the apartment of Mrs. Getz.

"She awoke Mrs. Elsie Rowell and they tried to reach a doctor. No doctor could be found. Then we called the police."

Mrs. Mahan, back in her own apartment to wait for arrival of an ambulance, found herself becoming mysteriously more ill. She noticed the other children acting oddly. She took Anne in her arms but the child appeared to have fallen into a stupor.

Anne Mahan died while the ambulance was speeding from City Hospital.

Michael O'Malley, male nurse who came in the ambulance, soon saw nothing could help her now. His belief was confirmed by Dr. Nathan Gaber of Mt. Vernon st., Charlestown, police physician.

There was a fire station only a few yards from the wing but none of the frightened women had thought of calling for an inhalator squad.

Someone remembered to call a priest for little Anne before her body was removed to City Hospital. The last rites were intoned for her.

Then the sick and saddened Mahans were also hospitalized. Soon afterward Mrs. Getz and Mrs. O'Brien also had to be taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Getz' two children, William, 4, and Marylyn, a year old; Robert Rowell, 17, and his sisters, Eleanor, 15, and Mary, 13; Mrs. O'Brien's three children, Walter, Jr., 5; Thomas, 2, and Maureen, 10 months; Mrs. Henry Shackford and her son, Henry, 16; Mrs. Margaret Comeau and her children, Albert, 14, and Marjorie 7.

Smear Book Enters PAC Probe

By DAVID SENTNER

Boston Evening American, Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—The House un-American activities committee today was attempting to discover whether Sidney Hillman's Red-dominated Political Action Committee financed the smear booklet published by Press Research, Inc., of Washington, in which Gov. Dewey was slandered along with such Democratic opponents of the New Deal and Communism as James A. Farley and Col. John J. Bennett.

Edward J. Flynn, Democratic boss of the Bronx, who battled against the Communist-Political Action Committee influence in the Democratic national convention in Chicago, also received a gob of mud, as did Mrs. Dewey in the volume entitled "Going My Way."

Officials of the Political Action Committee will be linked with Nelson Poynter, director of Press Research, and David Loth, its managing editor, through records of telephone calls and telegrams subpoenaed by Chief Investigator Robert E. Stripling of the House Committee.

Poynter, himself, is a member of the National Citizens' Political Action Committee.

Loth, subpoenaed to appear before the committee today, registered in 1936 in New York city as a Communist voter, and signed a Communist petition in 1937 to put the party on the ballot, according to committee files. He also is shown to have contributed an article to the New Masses, Communist magazine, in 1937.

Loth, in a telephone interview, admitted the charge that he was a Communist came up when he applied for the job he formerly held in the publications division of the Office of Inter-American Affairs.

"However, the government was satisfied and I got the job," he said.

Lost Flier Due Home to Wed

After five fearful months, the hopes and prayers of the fiancee and father of 2 Lt. Douglas J. Eames, Jr., of Beacon st., Hyde Park, all are coming true—he's coming home.

"Safe and well. Will be home shortly." was the cablegram which brought them the first joy they have known since they received a War Department message last April: "Missing in action on a bombing mission over France."

"It's the best news I've ever had in my life," beamed Miss Beatrice J. Maddox of Canton, the young flier's fiancee.

"I've never given up praying. We planned to be married last Nov. 5 only he was ordered across too speedily. He'll be home again in about three weeks and I'd like to have that same date for our wedding day.

"His father and I have always hoped for this good news and we never gave up hope because we learned later that the crew of his bomber were seen parachuting to earth after their plane ran out of gas near Paris."

The message of his safety is the first to come through since April, but Eames, Sr., believes his son was secreted by the French underground until the Yanks took over France.

There is one part of the homecoming, however, that will bring sadness for the returning hero. His mother died in January, only a month after he went overseas.

Eno Appointed Lowell Judge

The appointment of Arthur L. Eno as justice of the Lowell District Court to succeed the late Patrock J. Reynolds was submitted by Gov. Saltonstall to the executive council today. Eno has been a special justice since 1927.

Among other appointments also submitted were:

Lawrence Terry of Concord as trustee of the Massachusetts Training Schools in place of Sheldon Glueck, resigned; Henry L. Cole Boxford, appointed to the State Forestry Commission; Margaret Dieter, Boston, reappointed to the board of registration in nursing; Frederick A. Cookson, Birmingham, reappointed to the State board of registration in embalming and funeral directing; Merritt F. Garland, Haverhill, reappointed to the board of registration in chiropractic; Jean Sisson, Newton, appointed to the Commission on Uniform State Laws.

Willard B. Luther and John A. Daly, both of Cambridge, reappointed to the Commission on Uniform Laws, and John E. Stiles, Gardner, to the Commission to Qualify Public Officers.

Judge Eno was born in Lowell in 1892, is a graduate of Harvard, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1914.

Terry, who becomes superintendent of the State training schools when his appointment is cofirmed, was born in New York in 1899, graduated from Harvard, and has been headmaster of the Middlesex school since 1938.

WAC, Sailor Wed Tonight in Lynn

Granted a five-day license waiver because of their war duties, Cpl. Hazel Kiddle of the WAC and Seaman Gale Aldrich of the Merchant Marine will be married tonight.

The ceremony will be performed at the Washington st. Baptist Church, Lynn, at 7 p. m., by Rev. Chester Howe. Patrolman William McDonald of the Lynn police department will be best man, and Sgt. J. Henry Wall and Patrolman Thomas Grady, ushers.

Cpl. Kiddle of Carthage, Mo., and Aldrich, from Wellington, Kan., were childhood sweethearts. She has recently been on duty at the WAC recruiting booth in Central sq., Lynn, where the policemen have been on traffic duty. Aldrich just came in from a voyage.

Coast Guardsman's Story Saga of War

By ALICE BISSELL

The 19-year-old Coast Guardsman sat in the corner away from the others and didn't say anything.

Surtes Graham, 19, EM 3c, of Belleville, Ill., was at the U. S. Coast Guard Receiving Station, Hotel Brunswick, today after 19 months of action aboard an LST.

He was the only representative of his ship at a press conference for 24 brave Coast Guards from various types of landing craft back in the States at last for a 30-day leave.

He watched the Boston American photographer, Bill Jones, enter the room, let out a yell and drop his camera when he saw the gallant crew of the LST Black Jack Maru waiting to have their pictures taken.

Graham observed them reminisce about another and less pleasant assignment they had had with Jones last July. That was in Normandy when Jones was covering the war, and here was the crew that took him across the channel and back after D-Day.

All of them had been through the same thing — Africa, India, Anzio, Salerno, England, D-Day — and they willingly told the facts of their fighting.

And when it was all over, young Graham in the corner told a little story that sums up what was behind the grins and joking of the courageous men at the press conference.

"I sit here thinking of my best friend, Ottie Grau, who was 25 and a seaman. I joined the Coast Guard my junior year at high school and he was my best friend from the beginning at boot camp.

"He was going to be here with me now, and going to take the train home with me. He is all I remember now of the war.

"We were on our last trip across the channel from France, and we'd been told we were going back to the States.

"Ottie and I and some others were churning ice cream for a going-home celebration. We were a few miles off the Isle of Wight when we struck a mine.

"Ottie was a trombonist in a band. He was talking jive talk as he churned. He was kidding around and saying I wasn't 'hep' at churning, when suddenly there was nothing.

"He was dead in a second. Twenty-two others were killed, and 24 of my crew badly wounded.

"They sent Ottie up to an American cemetery to be buried. There wasn't such a kick now in going home. We didn't horse around in England like we'd planned.

"Eighty of us who survived decided to go to church. All of us of different faiths went to one church and prayed.

"I sat there with the other guys in the candlelight and thought of Ottie. All the way through the war he kept talking about the day he'd get hold of a trombone again.

"He said he was going to play a song so loud in front of the crowd that he'd make the angels dance and sing.

"Ottie had hoped to play in a night club that week in England. I sat in church and thought of the angels dancing and singing and Ottie playing jive.

"That's what I was thinking about at this press conference," he said. "Maybe it's something only us guys in this room understand how it is to lose your best friend."

Detroit Strike Puts 35,500 Idle

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (AP) Production in seven Detroit war plants was halted today and 35,500 workers made idle by a strike of maintenance employes engaged in a wage dispute with the War Labor Board.

Closed were five Briggs Manufacturing Co. factories, the De Soto Wyoming ave. plant of the Chrysler Corporation and the Jefferson ave. factory of Chrysler. All have been making aircraft, truck and gun parts.

About 100 crane operators and electricians left their jobs at the Ford-operated Willow Run bomber plant, however, and within two hours voted to return to their jobs and re-entered the plant.

The CIO Union claimed its men were paid less than AFL-affiliated employes and that it had failed in efforts to obtain "equalization" through WLB.

Spokesmen for the CIO union estimated 1,000,000 war workers could be affected by a strike of maintenance workers in 300 plants.

25 Children Shaken in Crash

Twenty-five children in a school bus were shaken up and the woman driver of an automobile injured when the two vehicles collided head on at North and Adams sts., Lexington, today.

The woman was Marcia L. Jackson, 24, of Bonad rd., West Newton, whose car was demolished, but who suffered only a knee injury. Mario Palmeri, of Hartford rd., Bedford, was driving the children to the Parker School in Lexington. None of them was hurt.

Demand Fifth Son's Return

TREMONTON, Utah, Oct. 4 (INS)—An elderly farm couple, three of whose sons were killed in action and a fourth reported missing, wondered today whether they were unpatriotic in requesting that a fifth soldier son be permitted to come home to help them on the farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Borgstrom's fifth son, Boyd, has served 18 months with the Marines in the South Pacific.

"We want to do all we should," Mrs. Borgstrom explained today, "but we really need Boyd to help us keep the farm going."

The Borgstroms petitioned Marine headquarters to send Boyd back to them, and the entire community of Tremonton was stirred to action.

A petition was being circulated, and the services of Sen. Thomas and Rep. Walter K. Granger have been enlisted.

In a telegram to Washington Sen. Thomas urged that Boyd be released "because Mrs. Borgstrom has given her country what few are asked to sacrifice."

Friends said Mr. and Mrs. Borgstrom at first were hesitant about requesting that Boyd be released from the Marine Corps.

"They didn't want to appear to be unpatriotic," a neighbor explained.

Before Pearl Harbor six sons helped their father with plowing and planting. Then, one by one, the brothers went to war.

First came news that Clyde, 23, a Marine, had been killed in action on the beachhead at Guadalcanal. Then Leroy, 30, the eldest, was killed in action with the Army last May and was buried in Italy.

A third telegram notified the Borgstroms that Rolan, 19, who had volunteered with his twin, Rulon, in June, 1943, had been wounded fatally in the invasion of France. The twins had been entitled to occupational deferments as farmers.

Just a few days ago, a fourth telegram said Rulon, an Army private first class, was missing in action in France.

The parents are keeping up the farm with the help of their youngest son, Elton, 16. Three daughters are married.

Quiz OPA Boy Employe In Office Check Thefts

The greatest scandal in the short history of OPA in Boston was revealed today with the announcement by Secret Service operators that thousands of checks sent through the OPA mailing room in Houghton-Dutton Building had been stolen with a loss that was not yet determined.

A 17-year-old male employe of the OPA was taken into custody for questioning in connection with the long series of thefts.

The youth was being questioned by William Connelly, Patrick Smith and Edward Ronan, Secret Service men, and Asst. U. S. Atty. Charles E. Cunningham.

Definitely traced through bank records were checks totaling more than $400 which had been cashed by the thieves.

While the examination of records continued today the investigators said that checks worth more than $1100 were known to have been stolen although it was not yet known if they had been cashed.

The probers said the thefts had been going on for several months. Many of the checks were addressed to OPA executives while others were personal checks to employes in the Tremont st. headquarters of OPA.

The youth, who worked in the mailing room, was routed out of bed in his Myrtle st., West End, rooming house by the Secret Service men.

Other employes of the office were expected to be brought in for questioning, the operators said.

The announcement climaxed months of investigation started by complaints from banks cashing the checks. Indorsements were forged in the name of the persons to whom the checks were made out with little attempt to duplicate their signatures, officials said.

The checks ranged in value from $1.05 to $262.24 in the batch thus far established as stolen.

Ask Indictments In M'Grath Death

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 4—Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing appeared before the grand jury today to seek indictments in the murder of 10-year-old Frances McGrath of Dorchester, whose body was found in Norwell, June 16, six days after she was reported missing from her family's summer home at Peggoty Beach, Scituate.

State Police Detectives Michael J. Cullinane, William Delay and Norman Butler, Sgt. William Radigan, state trooper, State Chemist Joseph Walker and Frances' father, former City Councilor John J. McGrath, were scheduled to testify before the grand jurors.

Dewing said four principal witnesses in the case would not be called.

11 JAP PLANES IN WEEK

CHUNGKING, Oct. 4 (AP)—Fourteen Japanese planes were destroyed in combat by the U. S. 14th Air Force during the week ending Sept. 27 without the loss of a single American aircraft, Gen. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Al Smith

Democratic leader of the assembly in 1911 and speaker in 1913.

After serving as sheriff in New York County, he became president of the board of aldermen, polling a tremendous vote.

Tammany Hall ran him for governor in 1918 and he won, defeating Gov. Charles S. Whitman. He suffered his first political defeat two years later when Nathan L. Miller was elected to the governorship, but Smith came back in 1922 and beat Whitman.

His other gubernatorial victories were over the late Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Ogden L. Mills.

As the Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, he made his 21st and last campaign for public office.

After his defeat he accepted the presidency of the Empire State Building Corp. and later branched out into business life as a director on a dozen or more boards.

Smith was active all his life in Catholic Church affairs. On his 70th birthday Pope Pius XII sent him an apostolic benediction.

Despite his enormous popularity with many elements of the population, Smith made notable political enemies. Strife between him and William Gibbs McAdoo had far-reaching repercussions. They were deadlocked for 99 ballots at the Democrats' 1924 national convention in New York, where the presidential nomination finally went to John W. Davis.

It was McAdoo who engineered the switch of delegates that achieved Roosevelt's nomination at Chicago in 1932, when Smith was the candidate of a "stop Roosevelt" faction. Coolness between Smith and Roosevelt resulted.

Roosevelt Pays High Tribute to Al Smith

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (INS)—President Roosevelt issued this special statement on the passing of Al Smith in New York:

"Al Smith had qualities of heart and mind and soul which not only endeared him to those who came under the spell of his dynamic presence in personal association but also made him the idol of the multitude."

"To the populace he was a hero. Frank, friendly and warm-hearted, honest as the noon-day sun, he had the courage of his convictions, even when his espousal of unpopular causes invited the enmity of powerful adversaries.

"During his tenure as Governor of the great State of New York, he attracted national attention by his skill as an administrator. It was a natural sequence that he should become the candidate of his party for the highest office in the land. In a bitter campaign, in which his opponent won, Al Smith made no compromise with honor, honesty or integrity. In his passing the country loses a true patriot."

"Valiant, Intrepid," Says Herbert Hoover

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—Former President Herbert Hoover, who defeated Smith in the 1928 presidential election, paid this tribute:

"Gov. Alfred Smith contributed a real part in building America. Great as that was, it was his qualities of character that will leave a mark on American life. He was valiant in political campaigns, but he was so intrepid in his honesty of mind, in his fairness and his sportsmanship that he won the esteem and personal friendship of every opponent."

Congressmen Blast Navy Stand on Battle of Statler

By ARTHUR F. HERMANN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (INS)—Demands for a full investigation of the Battle of the Statler were voiced on Capitol Hill today in order to "place the responsibility where it belongs."

Congressmen voiced sharp criticism of the Navy Department for its failure to supply sailors overseas with the news of a fight between members of the Teamsters' Union and two naval officers, during which one of them "beat up a personal friend of the President."

The Navy's reason for withholding the news from its personnel—that it was of a "political nature"—evoked particularly sharp reaction.

"It is up to us on the home front to give overseas men good administration—and to tell them the truth," declared Rep. Robert F. Jones (R.) of Ohio.

Unlike the Navy, the Army has dispatched overseas at least two condensed stories of the brawl.

Rep. John M. Rankin (D.) of Mississippi, chairman of the House committee on veterans' legislation, declared:

"The incident should be thoroughly investigated in order to place responsibility where it belongs."

The two naval officers involved in the fight, Lt. Randolph Dickins, Jr., a "battle fatigue" patient at Bethesda Naval Hospital, and Lt. Com. James H. Suddeth, both told identical stories that the fight broke out after teamsters had tried to question them on how they were going to vote and had charged them with being "disloyal" to their service and to their commander-in-chief.

Rep. Cox (D.) of Georgia, castigated the teamsters involved in the altercation as "goons" and "outlaws."

Kimmel, Short Seen Cleared

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune, in a Washington dispatch, says the Navy board of inquiry appointed to investigate the Pearl Harbor attack has completed taking of testimony and soon will issue a report on its findings.

The paper asserts the impression in Navy circles is that the board will inform Secretary Forrestal it has found no information to warrant court-martial proceedings against R. Adm. Husband E. Kimmel.

Adm. Kimmel

Army sources, too, the Tribune, continues, consider it likely the Army board will return a negative report against Maj. Gen. Short. These sources, the paper says, asserted the Army board would issue its findings simultaneously with the Navy within two weeks.

The paper says that Navy circles believed the board would declare that so many persons were involved there is no possible way of singling out any one person for blame for the attack.

Time Grows Short For GIs' Yule Gifts

Only 11 days remain to bring Yuletide happiness to some fighting man overseas who might otherwise be forgotten.

These 11 days are the period before the Oct. 14 deadline on mailing of Christmas parcels overseas. In that time you can enroll in the Christmas Gifts for Buddies Overseas campaign sponsored by the Boston American, Record and Sunday Advertiser.

Probably almost every reader has some member of his or her family in service overseas. But remember, too, there are many servicemen who have no families to think of them and assure them of happiness on Christmas Day.

Don't you think they would appreciate the thoughtfulness and warm-heatedness of someone who would try to make the holiday a cheery one for a stranger? Listen to what Miss Mary Murphy of Everett ave., Somerville says about it:

"I have two brothers in the service," she wrote in enrolling in the campaign. "My oldest brother is in the Marines and this will be his third Christmas away from home.

"He said there was NOTHING BETTER than getting a package from home. That is why I want the name of some serviceman."

That's how the boys overseas feel about it. That's why no serviceman should be forgotten on Christmas Day.

Enroll now and you will quickly receive the name of some serviceman whose Christmas will be a brighter one because of your generosity.

Be sure to comply with the postal regulations concerning Christmas gifts for overseas servicemen.

All packages should be plainly marked "Christmas Parcel," and bear the name and return address of the sender. Packages should be enclosed in wood, metal or fiberboard containers and must not exceed five pounds in weight.

National Hookup For School Radio

A plan to broadcast the program over a CBS national hookup from the school auditorium resulted in postponement of the installation of the first portable radio MYC-WEEI Jr. at the Massachusetts Youth Committee recreation center, Joseph H. Barnes School, East Boston, which had been scheduled for Friday night.

Boston school officials and representatives of WEEI will perfect arrangements at a conference Friday afternoon.

The shift to a later date will enable students and parents to witness the technique of a national hookup, which will convert the school hall into a broadcasting studio, with use of a radio model built by teen-age students at Boston Trade School.

The 14 MYC night recreation centers will open tonight with enlarged programs for the 1944-45 term.

Many Crops Still Coming In

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head, Market Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School, and Director, Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser Garden on Boston Common.

Despite frosts and the continuing cold weather, well planned gardens should still be producing plenty of beets, carrots, spinach, chard, radish and broccoli.

Some farmers are still finding it hard to get labor for harvesting their crops. If you have any spare time, it can be used to advantage in helping the farmer. Some farmers are offering to sell crops to responsible local people in the field, and are allowing them to do their own harvesting.

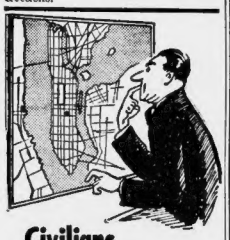
Some of the lighter sorts are again beginning to dry out. Cultivate and work the soil around late cabbage and apply a little nitrate of soda to encourage growth. Late crops such as carrots, cabbage, spinach and turnips still have three or four weeks to grow and will size up considerably if kept growing and watered.

If tomato plants have been frosted and still have green fruit on them, it is good management to save the larger specimens. Any tomato more than two inches across will ripen and extend your garden season. Store these green fruits either wrapped or in baskets in a room at 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

If you have late cauliflower that is starting to head, be sure to tie the leaves over the head. This should be done as the head shows.

One new vegetable that is finding its place among local gardeners is the butternut squash. This squash has many advantages for the small grower. It has been used successfully for summer squash, pies, and as a baked vegetable.

One point in favor of growing this vegetable is that it is almost immune to the squash vine borer attacks.



Civilians have problems in logistics, too!

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—Would appreciate if you would settle this dispute. "A" claims he is a veteran of World War II regardless of the fact he requested a discharge to return to war work and also being over 38 years of age. He claims he is entitled to benefits under "G. I." Bill. "B" claims he is not a veteran of World War II and is not entitled to any benefits because he only served five months and nine days from Nov. 19, 1942 to March 27, 1943 and requested a discharge. Who is correct, A or B? H. W. Lynn.

A—"A" is correct. He is a veteran and eligible for benefits under the "G. I." Bill. Law provides he must have served ninety days or more active duty, after Sept. 16, 1940, honorably discharged or released from service by reason of an injury or disability incurred in service in line of duty.

Q—I was mustered into the federal army from the National Guard on Sept. 16, 1940. I was stationed at a local armory for five days before my outfit departed for duty in Boston Harbor. However, I was discharged (honorable) because of dental trouble. Am I entitled to a World War II service pin? W. T., Braintree.

A—Yes. You actually served five days with the armed forces following the national emergency proclaimed by the President. Apply at Headquarters Detachment Offices, First Service Command, Hotel Buckminster, Kenmore sq., Boston. Bring discharge.

Q—Can my boy friend who has just been inducted in the Army make me the beneficiary to his National Service Life Insurance? L. S., Medford.

A—No. Beneficiary must be one or more of the following, wife, child, parent, brother or sister.

Q—I was in the Army for only three months and was honorably discharged in January, 1941, ten months prior to Pearl Harbor. Am I entitled to benefits under "G. I." Bill and where can I apply for information concerning these benefits? E. C., Roxbury.

A—As I have answered in above question you have to serve 90 days or more in the service. Did you actually serve a full ninety days or more on active duty. If so the answer is yes and apply at local Veterans Bureau.

(Questions submitted to Veterans Friend Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston 6, Mass., will be answered in this daily column.)

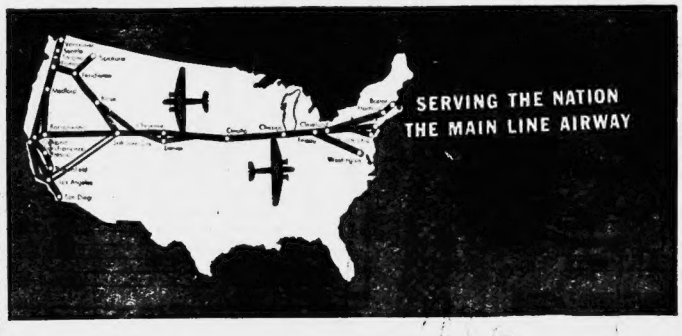
WHAT IS UNITED'S MAIN LINE AIRWAY?



United Air Lines' famous Main Line Airway is the nation's oldest coast-to-coast airway, the strategic middle route straight across the heart of the country.

It links the East with important areas of the Middle West, Great Plains, Intermountain and entire Pacific Seaboard. The Main Line Airway coast-to-coast goes where business is!

Just as soon as equipment is available, United Air Lines will inaugurate Mainliner Service from Boston and Hartford over this great skyway to Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Denver and major Pacific Coast cities.

United is looking forward to serving New England . . . and is preparing now to offer this area new, fast, direct airline transportation in the Age of Flight.

WHAT PRICE one pair of EYES?

THINK of it . . . one American school child in five has defective vision. At college age, it's four students out of 10. And after 35, more than half the people have eyesight troubles! The tragedy is that so much of this difficulty is traceable to needless eye-strain.

Take a moment now to see what you can do to conserve the precious eyesight of your family. Precautions are simple. They don't require much time or money. They're just good common sense!

TODAY just remember these four simple rules:

1. Do all reading, studying, sewing or game-playing close to a good light source, preferably a modern reading lamp

2. Avoid glare from bare bulbs. Don't sit facing the light. Glare strains eyes.

3. Avoid shadows. Make sure you have good light directly on your book or work. Shadows strain eyes.

4. Have eyes examined regularly. If eyes are defective, vision can be greatly helped with proper glasses.

TOMORROW... when the war is over and good lighting equipment is plentiful, you'll probably be enjoying many brand-new lighting ideas in your home. Here are just a few:

Modern lighting, which has been used so successfully to speed war production, will find many uses in the postwar home. It's so easy on the eyes. In your living room, for instance, you should have ample, glareless light so that several people may read in comfort.

Modern light will play a big part in our postwar civilization. Perhaps your nursery doorway will be guarded with an overhead fixture giving out germ-killing rays which will kill airborne bacteria. Other modern fixtures will give you your daily sun bath in the privacy of your own bathroom or bedroom.

The postwar kitchen will be a marvel of modern lighting with modern fixtures on the ceiling and over working surfaces. It will be almost like doing your housework outdoors.

At the dressing table . . . overhead lighting with the choice of two kinds of light—one for daytime makeup, the other for evening makeup.

IN THE MEANTIME . . . plan for a brighter postwar home by investing every cent you can in War Bonds!

Engagement Dance

By BETTY ALDEN

CELEBRATING their engagement, Grace Ver Planck of Waban and Lt. James A. Roberts, USNR, of Milton dined and danced at the Copley Plaza Oval Room the other evening, the pretty bride-to-be never more radiant than in her black dinner dress with off-shoulder neckline outlined in jet sequins and a tulle ruffle. A spray of baby yellow orchids was tucked in her brunette tresses.

Dining together, Mrs. Albert Navarro (Eleanor Frothingham) and Mrs. Jack Lemon were a chic pair, the former in black with diamond clips at the neckline, and Mildred Lemon in a smart tangerine and black print. Mrs. William B. Pratt was catching up on the latest news of her lieutenant son, Bruce, home on leave from the Army.

* * *

THE CHARMING comedy, "I Remember Mama," at the Plymouth, and the Russian Ballet at the Opera House are providing rich theatrical fare for Bostonians. Delighted with the former was Mrs. Harris Nelson who sat way down front at the Plymouth opening and was modishly gowned in black with silver fox. Handsome Mrs. Guy Currier attended with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Steinert, and Lavinia Sabine's guest was Mrs. Harry Curtis of Bermuda.

Mrs. Albert C. Titcomb was very spiffy at the Ballet opening, in a black cocktail suit sparkling with sequins to match her fetching little beanie, and her daughter, Joan, who sports ribbons and medals galore in honor of her record number of hours as a Nurses' Aide, was another enthusiastic ballet fan. Mrs. Samuel Warren, up from the North Shore, brightened her black dinner gown with pearls

DO WHAT QUINTUPLETS ALWAYS do for CHEST COLDS

- To Promptly Relieve Coughing
- Make Breathing Easier
- Break Up Congestion in Upper Bronchial Tract, Nose, Throat

Ever since they were tiny tots—whenever the Quintuplets catch cold—good old reliable Musterole is immediately rubbed on their chests, throats and backs.

Musterole gives such wonderful prompt relief because it's more than just an ordinary "salve". It's what so many Doctors and Nurses call a modern counter-irritant. Musterole not only relieves coughing, sore throat, tight aching chest muscles due to cold BUT ALSO breaks up congestion in upper bronchial tract, nose and throat. So much easier to apply than a mustard plaster. Just rub it on. "No fuss. No muss with Musterole."

GOOD ADVICE

ONLY the senior class of Emmanuel College heard Archbishop Cushing's address Monday, but women everywhere could profit by its sound logic.

Observing that women lose their charm and "the beautiful traits of womanhood" by striving to imitate men, the newly appointed head of the Archdiocese said:

"Women can be successful without sacrificing everything great and noble in their character."

From the dawn of civilization women have achieved most of their happiness and distinction by living natural lives.

Even illustrious queens, including Britain's famous Victoria, eschewed masculine manners and prerogatives.

Lately, however, many misguided women whose knowledge of history is as scanty as their understanding of psychology have attempted to change all this.

Their rebellion takes the form of wearing trousers and appearing in public places in other apparel that common sense and an elementary sense of humor should have caused them to discard in the privacy of the home.

Some go further and frequent cafes and saloons, where they sit shoulder to shoulder with men in various stages of intoxication, exchanging vulgarities and cheap banalities.

Of course, such women make themselves coarse and ridiculous in the eyes of wiser, more intelligent women.

Consequently, there is little danger of their actions being too widely copied or too generally condoned.

But the existence of any lack of decency and restraint is always a peril to society, and we need many more educational institutions of the Emmanuel type to combat it.

PLANT TREES

THE huge Knysna forests in South Africa are to be closed for a period of two hundred years to permit the renewal of the original growth.

For years these extensive woodlands produced valuable timber for building purposes and furniture making.

We have a similar problem in New England.

Throughout the past century our once-great forests have been ruinously exploited by individuals and organizations that cared little or nothing about the future.

The result is that one of our most precious natural resources has been almost completely destroyed and the possibility of prosperous employment for millions of men eliminated.

A VAIN PLEA

REPRESENTATIVE SCRIVNER, the Kansas Republican, is vigorously campaigning for the return of the two-pants suit.

Recently he dashed off a forceful letter to Chester Bowles, the OPA administrator, saying a surplus of coats is building up in American closets because trousers wear out first.

Sad to relate, Mr. Scrivner did not get far. The OPA washed its official hands of the whole thing and said the problem was one for the War Production Board to worry about.

The Board listened to the complaint but gave the Kansan little encouragement. Pleats, belts and patched pockets might be restored, officials declared. But, due to a scarcity of raw wool, extra pants were definitely out of the question.

If the gentlemen in the plush offices of Washington were transferred to cities where working in shirt sleeves is practically a custom, especially in hot weather, they would soon realize that their antipathy to suits with spare trousers is actually wasting more wool than it is conserving.

"SAFETY razor blades are rendered blunt not by the resistance of the beard in shaving but by the deposit of fine particles of rust on the cutting edge if the slightest moisture is left on the blade when it is put away. If the blade is put away wet and left so for more than 24 hours the rust eats the steel and the blade is ruined."

So states a British authority on steel and razor blades. I believe this man is right and am not in accord with those alleged experts who say you should never dry a razor blade but should let it dry by itself.

REPLY: Asked why the United Nations invasion forces were commanded by a United States general rather than a British general, the editor of the London News-Review replied: "The cold facts remain that American forces fighting in Europe are three, perhaps four times as numerous as the British." (Note—I wish this editor had explained why the United States is called upon to furnish four times as many fighting men in Europe as the British. I would like to get a definite answer on that one.)

GET IT RIGHT: A contemporary says Heinrich Himmler, Nazi Gestapo chief, was formerly a butcher in Munich. That's not right. Before he joined the Nazi party Himmler was a grocer at Feldmoching, a town near Munich. A man who is a butcher in Forest Hills, L. I., asked me to make this correction. He adds: "As a rule, butchers are peaceful home loving fellows rarely mixing in politics. On the other hand, grocers are very argumentative and almost all of them are mixed up in politics in some way."

BITTER CAMPAIGN No. 998B is directed against women offering their cheeks when approached for a kiss by sweethearts or husbands. No doubt this offering of the cheek is with a view toward protecting the make-up. But a girl who thinks of her make-up when her sweetheart starts to kiss her is one whose love is questionable. She either doesn't love the man; or she doesn't love love. The old-fashioned idea was that a kiss on the forehead meant respect, a kiss on the cheek friendship, and a kiss on the mouth, love. Greta Garbo's pictures were good examples of the latter kiss.

PLEASE NOTE: Dispatch from overseas quotes a U. S. Army sergeant as saying: "Home we hate to make a fuss over the girls. Here in Paris the girls make a fuss over the men." This remark is worth careful consideration by all American girls. Too many young females in this country have a "queen complex." They want to get plenty of attention and give little in return. Girls with this type of outlook on life usually carry it on into married life. It is domestic dynamite. It is one of the reasons you see so many beautiful girls getting divorces. Their husbands became tired of catering to them continually. Such is the opinion of our Mules & Men experts. I wonder what Rita Hayworth, Lana Turner and the other girls of Hollywood will say about this.

ASIDES: A New Zealand farmer grew a potato weighing five pounds and seven ounces. That's a lot of potato. However, I'll bet Idaho has grown a larger one . . . The U. S. Mint in Denver is to turn out 3,000,000 silver dollars. Around the time of World War I, that was a popular form of currency on the Pacific Coast. I remember giving a man a 20-dollar bill in San Francisco at that time and receiving 19 silver dollars in change. Was quite a load to carry around but it certainly made me feel rich.

GARDENERS: My father was an enthusiastic gardener. I like to walk through gardens, but not to work in them. I agree with the man who said: "To be a gardener you should have a hinge in your back." Anyway, no matter how much those who love gardening enjoy it, there is no reason they shouldn't grow something from which they can make a profit. I know a fellow who grows orchids and does all right. I know another fellow who has a garden of herbs and makes a nice profit from the same. I also know a woman who has a very small florist stand where she sells the flowers grown in her own garden.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—Inasmuch as President Roosevelt chose to identify himself with the Teamsters' Union in his recent attempt to combine the roles of Commander-in-Chief and night-club comedian, perhaps you would like to know something about this organization and its president, Daniel Tobin.

Westbrook Pegler

This is a very strong union of the American Federation of Labor with about 600,000 members, including clerical workers and others who are by no stretch of the imagination to be regarded as teamsters.

Most of these workers were involuntary joiners who were dragooned into the union by President Roosevelt's machine. It is badly infested with gangsters and is one of the worst offenders in the matter of mock-work, the device by which employers are compelled to pay loafers for doing nothing or criminals not to harm them.

This, of course, results in a great waste of man-power in war-time and constitutes a privileged racket, preying on the whole community, in peace or war.

Tobin is an amusing character in his solemn self-appreciation. This was apparent in October, 1942, when he appeared to be surprised and touched by the generosity of his general executive board in buying a house in Miami, Fla., for $45,000 as a present to him. The old man refused the gift, and you could have thought he had no idea that the board was going to do this magnificent thing for him.

★ ★ ★

ONE REASON for not accepting the house could have been a fear that the actual working teamsters might hold this to be just too much, although, actually, the rank and file have no influence on the political machine which runs the union.

Another reason could have been the sad case of Jimmy Petrillo, of the Musicians' Union. Jimmy's "boys" gave him a house costing $50,000. Whereupon the Internal Revenue ruled that the value of the house represented income. Jimmy had to dig up $26,000. By this precedent, old Dan Tobin would have been liable for income tax on the value of the house in Miami.

Dan turned the property back to the union, but got use of it for life. Other members of the ruling machine also were thus to be allowed to use it when Dan wasn't "in residence," and the upshot was that the horny-handed teamsters and the little girl clerks in warehouses all over the country were maintaining a palace for their ruling set.

★ ★ ★

THE ORIGINAL resolution set aside $100,000 for the palace, "fully furnished." It was to be "maintained" by the members, and this included "all taxes and assessments and the maintenance of the grounds, caretaking and necessary servants."

In turning the property back, old Dan, who, incidentally, has two sons on the union payroll at $10,000 a year each and himself draws $30,000 and unlimited expenses, wrote:

"I am aware that the general executive board unanimously decided to purchase a suitable home for the general president," meaning himself, "for the purpose of conserving the health and strength of General President Tobin because the board believed that the union had great danger of serious loss should anything happen to the health or life of General President Tobin."

That pomposity runs all through his writings and this use of the third person permits him to pay himself the most extravagant compliments.

★ ★ ★

THE UNION is vastly rich, having more than $5,000,000 in war bonds in its treasury. Tobin's little monthly magazine, mostly devoted to self-advertising at the expense of the members, recently criticized an unnamed Republican who had died, leaving "several million dollars," because the estate included only $40,000 in war bonds. The mother of President Roosevelt left $1,238,000 and only $10,000 of it was in war bonds, but Mr. Tobin couldn't be expected to comment on that.

Of course there is much more to be told about the union's ruling political machine and Old Dan himself, but this will give you an idea of the company Mr. Roosevelt selected that night.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4—More news about Lew Ayres' plan to become a minister after the war is told in an interesting letter from Lt. Richard Ney to his wife, Greer Garson.

"As soon as the war is over," writes Richard, "Lew intends to enter Yale to study for the ministry - and he also hopes to appear in religious films. When I saw him he had just been released from the hospital after suffering a dengue fever relapse and was stationed near where our destroyer had stopped."

Richard's letter continues: "At 4:30 a. m. I set off in my boat for the beach. The roads were almost impossible to travel—thick red dust got in our hair, lungs and shoes. But all of these externals mean nothing to Lew. I have never seen a more thoroughly happy man. It radiates in every move he makes. At 7 o'clock I went into the tent with him for his services. Lew played a suitcase organ and we sang hymns and listened to a gospel reading and a discussion of the parables."

WELL, NOW here's one for the book. Lawrence Tierney, the newcomer who will play John Dillinger in the Monogram movie, is the son of a New York police captain! For the past six weeks, Maurice and Franklin King, producers, have been looking for the right actor to play the infamous gangster. Established actors "spoiled the illusion" so after testing many unknowns they decided on Tierney (no relation to Gene) who has had brief roles in only three pictures. He is six feet tall, 25 years old and considerably better looking than the late Dillinger.

ALL RIGHT go ahead and gasp. I did, too, when I heard Ida Lupino had a secret yen to do "Marilyn Miller" at Warners and that producer Jerry Wald likes the idea. Personally, I can't see Ida, with her "tragic mask" (that's fancy talk for a sad facial expression) as the vivacious Miller. But when I put up an argument, someone said: "Ida is delicate and dainty, just as Marilyn was. They are both natural blondes and don't forget that while Marilyn's professional career was all gayness and light, there was much unhappiness in her private life."

MICKEY ROONEY'S sudden marriage after a week's acquaintance with Bette Jane Rase proves, more than ever, that he needs the guiding hand of Louis B. Mayer. When Mickey was at Metro he was given every help. Now, since he's in the Army, I have had dozens and dozens of letters from the boys with whom he isn't as popular as he should be. He's organized his own motion picture corporation and it's my opinion that's another foolish step. For no small part of his success has been the stories chosen for him by M-G-M, the company which raised him from the time he was knee high to a grasshopper.

A WONDERFUL IDEA has been advanced by Renzo Cesana for the soldiers and a number of prominent people have become interested in his idea, among them C. B. de Mille, Rupert Hughes and others. He has selected the slogan "Put a Bond in the Bank for a Yank" and his idea is for every one to select a Yank and buy a bond as a Christmas present and put it in the bank so it will be there when the service man returns. That's a contribution everybody can make and it seems to me a very worthy one. It's a little on the order of the Hearst papers' campaign for money for the soldiers. That has been, by far, the most appreciated gesture from civilians to the wounded men.

ANNABELLA has confided to a few close friends that as soon as she can get passage for France she is returning there to see if she can find her parents. She hasn't heard from them in a couple years and has been terribly worried. She's still in "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" on Broadway, but the moment she can get passage plans to leave the show. I hope the whispers she and Tyrone Power are not so happy as they were in the old days in Hollywood are just a lot of gossip.

FABLE FROM FORTIES: Mae West will probably never outlive her famous tagline, "Come up and see me sometime."

Earlier this week, an Army private visited Mae back stage at "Catherine Was Great," and invited her to entertain at a nearby Army post. But when he told her the date and the hour Mae shook her head. "I'd love to come," she said with unmistakable sincerity, "but I can't make it."

The soldier was sadly disappointed. Mae was sympathetic.

"Tell you what to do," she said. "Since I can't get to see the boys, tell them to come back stage and see me!"

That is why, at this writing, about 5000 G. I.'s have been told they've been invited personally by Mae West to visit in her dressing room!

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—Lt. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Army Service Forces, sent out a hurried summons for all the general officers in the Pentagon Building the other day.

He bade them drop whatever they were doing and come post-haste to a big conference room. No excuses, he implied, would be accepted.

The generals arrived, as directed, and began whispering among themselves as to what might be up. There were enough stars in the room to stage a pageant of the milky way.

General Somervell came in, clearing his throat. He told the distinguished gathering it had been assembled to hear a most important and illuminating talk.

The generals—he said—were about to have the unparalleled privilege of a few words from Mrs. Anna Rosenberg!

★ ★ ★

WELL, the generals were mildly flabbergasted. Several took the narrow attitude that, while Mrs. Rosenberg was doubtless an estimable woman, she could hardly have anything as important in mind as the business of getting on with the war.

In fact, one general—obviously an insular type—confided later that he had never heard of Mrs. Rosenberg. This was pretty unfair to the lady because she has had quite a bit of acclaim in her time. She had the distinction, among other things, of being investigated by a House appropriations subcommittee.

It seems the subcommittee had heard she was spreading her efforts too thinly—that while she was the $7500 New York regional director of the Social Security Board, she was also holding a couple of other well-paying jobs.

Later, Mrs. Rosenberg became New York director of the War Manpower Commission. She also became a special adviser to President Roosevelt on labor affairs—although there were some catty enough to observe that the President already seemed over-advised in this respect.

★ ★ ★

ANYWAY, Mrs. Rosenberg was presented to the generals. They were deeply impressed when Gen. Somervell said she had words of vast importance to unfold because she had just returned from abroad.

Everyone knows there is nothing a general adores so much as hearing from a civilian who has spent a few weeks overseas. They were further impressed when Gen. Somervell revealed Mrs. Rosenberg had spent 17 whole days in France.

Mrs. Rosenberg proceeded to enthrall them by disclosing that most of the soldiers think highly of Generals Eisenhower and Patton. This will probably make you gasp, but she said that a lot of soldiers refer to General Eisenhower as "Ike."

By George Dixon

Then she delivered her real message. The members of our armed forces, she declared, must be "re-oriented" before they are returned to civilian life.

The business of turning them into warriors, she said, has changed their philosophy and mental outlook. They are now—she declared—mentally and spiritually unfitted to be plunged straight back into civilian existence.

"What you generals have to do," she said, "is change them back into civilians, as you changed them into soldiers. You must give them re-orientation courses before they are released!"

★ ★ ★

MY SPIES inform me that most of the generals were fit to be tied. As they went back to their neglected chores they muttered—and the burden of their plaint was this:

"'Re-orientation—hell! Give any good soldier a release and a job and he'll re-orient himself!"

WESTBROOK PEGLER has just had the unmitigated gall to claim that Secretary of the Interior Ickes is his man.

In his restrained manner, Mr. Pegler said all others should lay off Old Harold because he has exclusive right and title to the venerable curmudgeon.

To my mind, this is the most flagrant case of chump-swiping on record. I claim Ickes belongs to me. I seen him first.

Why, I practically brought Ickes up! Who has watched over him with loving care, reporting every time he falls out of bed or gets punched in both eyes? Who quotes all his bright sayings and dotes over him like a mother with a backward child? Me—that's who!

It hasn't been easy, either. I scrimped and saved to give him every advantage, even sending him to the best school for drooolers I could find.

I paid extra to give him courses in crying, and also in bellyaching and backbiting. I even went without a diamond stomacher one whole winter so he could have private tutoring in frothing at the mouth.

Mr. Pegler apparently thinks he owns Ickes just because he has called him a few harsh names.

Years ago, when he should have been in short pants, I called him "The Busted Bellows."

So, please Harold, tell that pesky Pegler which of us you love?

"I'm sorry Ma'am, we've no more free booklets on resorts—but I know one more place I'd love to tell you to go!"

Boston After Dark

EN ROUTE TO BOSTON TODAY is the entire liquor stock of the Hurricane, New York's once busy nightclub . . . Dave Wolper, who sold the Hurricane in order to devote his energies exclusively to the theater, completed a deal for the sale of his precious liquor while in Boston with his play, "Men to the Sea" . . . Eddie Davis, owner of the Fox and Hounds (which includes the Rhumba Casino), is the purchaser . . . Some of the stuff is unobtainable in the current market, and a hundred-odd cases of scotch made the purchase particularly attractive.

★ ★ ★

MEANTIME, NIGHTCLUB-GOERS would be advised to switch from their favorite scotch, to some other type of liquor or—to be perfectly satisfied—to soft drinks . . . These last almost never are adulterated, and there is enough legitimate rye on the market to make it untempting to fake this potable . . . As for the scotch—there just isn't enough of the real stuff to sate the drinking palate of all nightclub habitues.

★ ★ ★

WHEN IT IS REALIZED that more than 70 per cent of the customers in the glitter-spots pass the headwaiter's portals with a determination to drink scotch, the answer is obvious . . . Ordering your particular brand is a senseless gesture . . . Order almost any brand of scotch and you will get the same stuff in some of the spots.

★ ★ ★

OF COURSE—Without naming them—there are notable exceptions . . . Owners of sumptuous nightclubs, representing huge investments, would be shortsighted indeed to swindle their customers via the bad liquor route . . . And the war and the present fantastic boom will not last forever.

★ ★ ★

IN NEW YORK, THE SCOTCH shortage is recognized openly . . . Most of the East Side hotels have discontinued serving scotch through "room service" . . . One candid hotel proprietor explains this policy as follows: "We have found that a patron who orders liquor by telephone will take anything that is offered as a substitute," he said . . . "It seems that when a guest decides to have a drink in his or her room, he or she is going to have that drink, regardless of the type of liquor available . . . Of course, we serve nothing but real liquor . . . If we are out of a particular brand, we say so."

Hair a Barometer of Your Health

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

TOPSY, IN UNCLE TOM'S CABIN, "just growed." Hair just grows, too . . . if you're lucky . . . but whether it's second grade product . . . or cream of the market . . . is up to you. Hair is often a barometer of your state of health.

If it's dry, lifeless, brittle . . . if it sheds powdered particles over your shoulders . . . if the scalp is scaly to the touch . . . it needs help. Growing a luxuriant, lustrous crop of hair requires three forms of external cultivation. The head is your garden and you're the gardener.

You have to stimulate the ground . . . comparable to hoeing. Even the soil of the earth must have acid veins corrected before we can grow a good crop of vegetables . . . and hair IS a vegetable growth. You have to bend over backwards in keeping the crop clean . . . that's watering. And, you have to use the correct tonics and lubricants . . . that's fertilizing and spraying.

You have blood circulating under that scalp of yours. If it's sluggish . . . no good. Put steam into it by brushing and massage. Do it every night . . . and how that old bloodstream will respond to this masterful treatment. Of course, that's all right for you to do . . . in the leisure moments at home! But how about that G. I. flutter of yours? Maybe once in a blue moon he has a chance to care for his scalp for his hair's sale. When things are popping he can't. When things are popping he's under great nervous strain. And, when things are popping he wears something tight and heavy on his head.

Nerve strain, tight hats and sparse shampoos lead to sparse hair.

A noted hair authority has created this special scalp concentrate . . . a hair stimulant that will quicken the pulse of scalp circulation . . . and act as a wholesome preservative for the crowning crop you'll both be proud of.

For name, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WE'RE NOT ASKING that you take a second look at the shapely limbs . . . though the relaxed position is a boon to vigorous hair brushing . . . but we do insist that you note the gleaming glint in Columbia Star Evelyn Keyes' healthy and luxuriant hair . . . an evidence that she is a mellow morsel from head to toe. Brushing a special concentrate into your scalp will also woke it up to be a "crowning glory."

Fashion

TO GIVE YOU THE NEW LOOK of planned contradiction . . . is this casual, felt peak hat, brimmed and tilted over the eye . . . illustrating the eloquent effectiveness of feminine allure meeting with tailored understatement. A velvet band and "treated" peacock feathers endow the topper with unexpected elegance. Worn with your collarless daytime suit and pearl dog-collar . . . it's after-dark magnificence.—R. M.

Silly Season For Him

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: Loose money, loose talk and loose women are wrecking our marriage. We are both unhappy, but he refuses to try to snap out of the spell he is in. He says he doesn't love me, but still comes home to sleep and have his meals. He goes out every night while I stay at home. He isn't interested in my friends and won't let me get too well acquainted with his. He is silent, grouchy, penny-pinching at home, but with his men and women friends he's a good talker, pleasant, and a good spender. He's working it a defense plant.

Is it fair to separate the children from their father, because we can't get along, or must we endure it for their sakes? His language around home makes just the environment for young children. He says a man could not find a better wife than I've been, but still he treats me only as a housekeeper. For the last three years, there have been other women.

I'm only 30 years old. All I want is happiness, love and companionship. What do you advise? D. F. N. W.

If you really want a divorce, and if you do, what skills have you to enable you to support the children? Are you willing to wait and see how things turn out when war work in the defense plant comes to an end? At that time many fathers will experience a lucid interval.

Vary Bread, Fillings Each Day in Lunch Box Menus

By MARTHA LEE

SINCE SANDWICHES are the entrees of most lunch-box menus, it is a good plan to vary the bread as well as the fillings every day. Cereal sandwich breads help provide this variety that is the spice of the lunch-box

PRUNE-NUT BREAD

2 cups sifted flour
½ cup sugar
2½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. soda
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1¼ cups buttermilk or sour milk
2 tbsp. shortening
1 cup diced, drained, cooked prunes
½ cup chopped nuts

Sift flour, measure, resift with sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Add rolled oats and mix thoroughly. Combine buttermilk or sour milk with melted shortening that has been cooled slightly. (If you have neither sour milk nor buttermilk on hand, simply add 1 tablespoon of vinegar to 1 cup of sweet milk. Add to flour mixture with prunes and nuts. Stir up enough to moisten dry ingredients. Do not beat; the batter should be lumpy. Turn into well-greased loaf pan and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 1 hour or until done. Makes 1 loaf, 9x5x3 inches.

Cornbread, baked in a loaf and sliced for sandwiches, is lunch box news. Spread your favorite ground ham filling between the golden slices. It's also delicious with egg, other meat, or fish spreads.

FLUFFY CORNBREAD LOAF

1 cup cornmeal 2 tbsp. flour
1 tsp. salt 1 tbsp. sugar
2 tbsp. shortening
1 cup boiling water 2 eggs
½ tsp. baking powder

Combine cornmeal, flour, salt and sugar; mix well. Add shortening and boiling water stirring shortening until shortening is melted and mixture blended. Separate the eggs. Stir the yolks that have been beaten well. Beat the whites until stiff and add the baking powder to them. Fold in to cornmeal mixture. Pour into well-greased loaf pan. Bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 20 to 25 minutes.

Orange Loaf is a new cereal flake bread, delightfully flavored with fresh orange juice and grated rind.

ORANGE LOAF BREAD

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt ½ cup sugar
1 egg ½ cup milk
3 tbsp. melted shortening
½ cup orange juice
2 tbsp. grated rind
1 cup wheat flakes or corn flakes

Sift together dry ingredients. Combine beaten egg with milk and shortening; add to dry ingredients; stir until blended. Add the orange juice and rind and cereal flakes. Pour into a greased loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for about 1 hour. Makes 1 loaf 9x5x3 inches.

Slices of this crusty loaf are welcome when simply spread with butter, yet these fillings add new interest and make sandwiches that are taste-tempters:

1—1 cup peanut butter blended with ¼-cup mayonnaise or tart jelly.

2—Cream cheese moistened to spreading consistency with cream and blended with ¼-cup chopped figs or nuts.

3—1 cup grated American cheese blended with ¼-cup each of mayonnaise and chopped, stuffed olives.

4—1 cup cottage cheese mixed with 1 tbsp. chopped mint or watercress, 1 tsp. lemon juice and salt to taste.

Stunning New Evening Capes

By BETTINA BEDWELL

EVENING capes are a luxury item in the winter fashions, and they are going to be stunning high style notes in the places where chic folk gather. There are very slim, austere looking evening capes made of fine furs like broadtail and snowy ermine, worn by 24-carat women. There are also going to be stunning wool or satin capes, often lined with fur and treated with embroidery to increase their opulence.

One of the cloth capes is sketched. This model is made of American Beauty red wool, and it is street length, and could be worn over your cocktail suit as well as over your long evening dresses. The shoulders and front are embroidered with a design done in black braid and jet beads, the embroidery showing up in startling drama against the red of the cape.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY —I spent most of yesterday at Mitchel Field, visiting the convalescent hospital, having lunch at the hospital mess, and attending and speaking at the show which is [illegible] afternoon [illegible]

[illegible] there is a therapeutic value in work here as there is possible when it becomes apparent that they cannot be restored in a short time to duty. No one can go to Mitchel Field and not come away with a deep sense of pride in the men themselves and also of gratitude to the doctors and nurses who do such a magnificent job.

* * *

IT IS OF COURSE a satisfaction to them to feel that they can alleviate suffering when in the midst of war. Nevertheless, I often wonder how they bear the constant stream of human tragedies which they have to be in touch with day in and day out.

Just walking along the street the other day I passed a theater where the crowd was streaming in, and there stood a group of sailors. Among them was a boy with a cane and his hand on another boy's arm. His face had that sad, blank look of a recently blinded person, and it has haunted me ever since.

* * *

I ATTENDED a meeting last evening, then took the night train to Washington. This marks my real return to Washington for the winter season.

The summer in the country has been a very busy one, with approximately eight children to keep me company a good part of the time, and a very important gentleman visiting frequently, and no inconsiderable number of other guests.

Today is filled with appointments. I am always surprised at the number of people one can see during the course of a single day. The mail is taking on quite monumental proportions, and Miss Thompson and I, wherever we go, find ourselves with several items of work on our hands just attending to the daily mail.

CAREFUL, PLEASE! Don't rush down the stairs! Half the noise and crowding on school staircases would be eliminated if all students walked briskly and in an orderly manner.

Hub Boy Scouts Salvage Champs

Success of Boy Scout participation in the waste paper salvage drive was greater in Boston than in any other section of the country, it was disclosed today by Don Moyer, regional Scout executive.

As a result, assistance of Scouts is to be extended to the drive on a state-wide basis throughout the fall and winter.

"Future participation of the Scouts in this salvage program is a source of deep satisfaction to our organization, which is trying to meet vital war needs," declared B. G. Waters, Jr., executive secretary of the Massachusetts Salvage Committee.

'Meet a Body,' at Wilbur, Proves an Amusing Thriller

By PEGGY DOYLE

On the basis of Critics' Circle awards, George Jean Nathan some time ago became obsessed with the fantastic idea that critics like plays with corpses in them.

The critics were yet to be heard from as of last night, but there was no doubt that the paying customers at last night's corpse-littered opening of "Meet a Body —" at the Wilbur warmly seconded the Shubert Alley sage.

"Mirth in a Mortuary" . . . and take that wry look off your face . . . might serve as an alternative title for "Meet a Body—," Jane Hinton's new murder mystery-comedy which boasts, among other things, Whitford Kane and Al Shean.

In the benign neighborhood of Kane and Shean, a pair of impecunious morticians of New York's lower East Side whose humor is much gentler than was that of Gallagher and Shean, the quick become the dead with such persistent frequency you might think a Public Enemy or a Keystone Kop was in the house.

It is all thoroughly baffling to Harry Gribbon's Detective Sergeant Corey of the Bronx whose cup would have been full with "one sweet little murder" but whose brain isn't adequate to solving a wholesale rubbing out job of six.

Whitford Kane's John MacGregor, whose worn but wonderful living room of MacGregor's Mortuary provides the background for Miss Hinton's amusing thriller, warms your heart and occasionally nudges your funny-bone. His is an expansive albeit shrewd characterization that gives flavor and heartiness to the script.

Nicely complementing Kane's Scotchman is the lovable, little language - muddler and fellow undertaker Al Shean, that veteran of more than 50 years' experience.

These two give authority to this thriller before, throughout and after the required corpse-quota is filled. Their complete at-homeness in the H. Clay Blaney production testifies to their mutual and endlessly changing footlights experience.

Supporting player Forrest Orr, for his florid impersonation of a glib, successful lawyer; Ruth McDevitt's quaintly practical Mrs. MacGregor; Le Roi Operti's free-wheeling mystery man, John Boyd's bottle-fed Officer McVeu; Nan Butler's harried Ellen Thorne and Helene Ambrose's brittle adventuress, also handle competently their assignments.

New Ballets Enchant Hub

By JOYCE DANA

Two new ballets—to Boston—inaugurated the week of the Ballet Theater at the Opera House. This is Russian Ballet, now under the auspices of S. Hurok, and locally of Aaron Richmond.

The balletomanes were out in force, and richly rewarded. For there was Leonard Bernstein's "Fancy Free," as amusing as a Walt Disney cartoon, and all about three sailors on shore leave and their attractive girl friends.

Mr. Bernstein conducted his own score—humorous, lively and as timely as tomorrow's headlines. It's satirical and saucy and clever.

It's something of an innovation in the ballet, and as descriptive as a page in your favorite picture magazine. And, as good as the principals were, it was altogether Mr. Bernstein's evening—his conducting matched and exceeded the performance, just as Jerome Robbins' choreography brought out something different and distinctive.

The big audience was properly enthusiastic. "Fancy Free" is an enchanting affair.

Anthony Tudor's "Romeo and Juliet" is another treat of the current engagement, pictorially perfect, but without the originality and novelty of Mr. Bernstein's witty opus. Hugh Laing's dancing is something to cheer about, and charming Nora Kaye, Nicholas Orloff and Mr. Tudor were in top form. Under Anton Darati the score was impressively played.

Greenwich Village At Olympia, Scollay

"Greenwich Village," starring Carmen Miranda, Don Ameche, William Bendix and Vivian Blaine, goes to the Washington st. Olympia and Scollay screens tomorrow. Paired with the fun-filled film will be "Roger Touhy, Gangster," with Preston Foster and Victor McLaglen.

Uptown's new screen bill for the week commmencing tomorrow teams "Secret Command," co-starring Pat O'Brien and Carole Landis in a espionage thriller, and "Take It or Leave It," film version of Phil Baker's radio show with Phil, of course, asking the $64 question.

Pete Reilly Here to Sign for Cerdan Go

By JACK CONWAY

PETE REILLY, American representative of Marcel Cerdan, will be at the ringside when Ralph Zanelli tries to win Coley Welsh's New England middleweight title at the Garden on Friday night.

"I plan to match Marcel Cerdan with the victor of the Zanelli-Welch battle," said Reilly, "and so would like to get a line on the two boxers."

Coley Welch

Cerdan is the sensational French 150-pounder who was praised so highly by Jack Sharkey after the latter refereed one of his bouts in the Allied boxing tournament in Africa.

"Armand Vincent of Montreal tells me that Cerdan will soon be ready to box in this country," said Reilly over the dinner table at the Copley Plaza. "Vincent has made the arrangements for bringing Cerdan to this country. I feel I shall be as successful in handling his affairs in the United States as I was with Max Schmeling and Andre Routis who I started on the road to world's championships."

Reilly also managed Jack Delaney, Bat Battalino, Freddy Miller, and other boxers who won world's titles. He is now piloting Cleo Shans and some other boxers.

★ ★ ★

Sees Boxing Boom

REILLY SEES a boxing boom in the postwar period.

"It will be necessary to develop boxers, but there will be many promising youngsters interested in the sport," said Pete. "The action in this war has been so fast and the area of operations so large that there has been little opportunity to develop boxers in the armed forces. The war is also almost three years old, and many of our better boxers in service have been subjected to much physical strain.

"I do not look for champions to step out of the armed services as soon as peace is declared. It will take several years of hard work with boxers who have not suffered too much from the scars of war."

Reilly believes that service men will look to boxing for action once peace is restored, and this will help the boxing boom.

★ ★ ★

Louis Without Rival

"I CANNOT see anyone who can beat Joe Louis," said Reilly. "Joe has too much boxing class and hits too hard for any other heavyweight. This goes for Billy Conn and the other contenders.

"There are a number of promising Army and Navy heavyweights, but they lack the experience to go against the 'Brown Bomber.'

"Heavyweights develop slower than men in the lighter classes, and so we may have to wait for several years after the war ends to find a contender who is classy enough to win from Louis."

Reilly plans to spend some time at Rockingham Park during his visit to New England. Pete and Mrs. Reilly, who is here with her husband, have been friends of Lou Smith and Mrs. Smith for years.

"Our daughter, Mrs. J. J. Quinn, has three horses at Rockingham Park," said Pete. "They are Marmaduke, Graustark and Singing Heels. I hope they will like the going at Rockingham.

"Boxing is my business, but like a lot of other folks, racing is my pleasure.

"When I had my own racing stable, Jimmy Coleman, trainer of Paper Boy, trained for me. He had Tenless at Agawam when Ty Shea was racing secretary of Dan Gurnett's track. Tenless was injured at the gate and it was necessary to destroy him. Shea was so considerate of Coleman at the time that the latter entered Paper Boy in the Narragansett Special this year.

"I had Jimmy on Jack Stevens' radio program before the race. We both told our listeners that Paper Boy would win, and he didn't disappoint us. Jimmy stood motionless after Paper Boy won, and I had to slap him a couple of times to make him realize everything was all right."

I left Pete and Mrs. Reilly talking with Lou Smith and Mrs. Smith about interesting happenings in racing.

Szabo Expects Hard Mat Bout

Returning after a successful campaign throughout the West and on the West Coast, Sandor Szabo, California, will be making his first stand in defense of his world's heavyweight championship tonight at the Arena where he will face challenger Jack Claybourne, Roxbury, in the feature of Promoter Paul Bowser's weekly wrestling show.

Szabo took over mat honors here last spring when he whipped the Golden Terror and off that form he'll probably be the favorite in this match.

Roger Harding College Pick

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Roger Harding, 190-pound center for the University of California, was selected today as the outstanding college football lineman of the week in the first Associated Press lineman poll of the grid season.

Harding, a 21-year-old civilian student from Walnut Creek, Cal. playing his second year on the varsity, was the big reason why powerful California upset UCLA, 6-0. In the first period he broke and blocked an attempted punt, scooped up the ball and raced 26 yards for the only touchdown. In the third period he broke up a UCLA threat by intercepting a pass on his own 26-yard line.

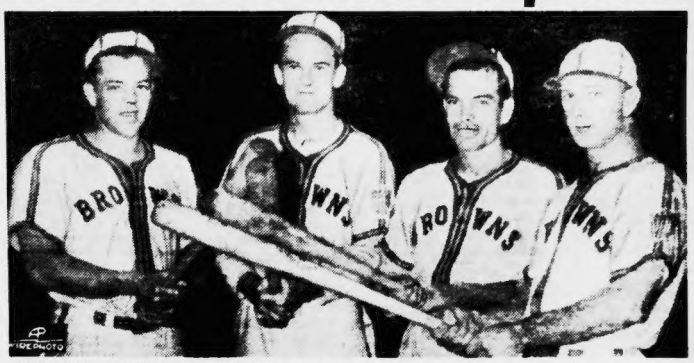
Framingham Boy Puts Orioles in Big Tie

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 3 (AP)—A jackpot homer by Stan Benjamin of Framingham, Mass., in the fifth, followed by another round-tripper off Howard Moss that gave Red Embree enough margin tonight to pitch the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-3 victory over Newark's Bears and tie the International League final playoff series at three games apiece before a crowd of 4070.

The winner of tomorrow night's contest, slated for Baltimore, will meet Louisville in the Junior World Series. Seventeen-year-old Don Johnson is scheduled to pitch for Newark against Stan West.

Benjamin's homer came off Elmer Singleton, who blanked the Orioles in the second game of the series. There were two out at the time. Moss' shot was his fourth of the series with Newark.

Rain Threatens Opener



BROWNIES SHARPEN UP THEIR EYES—Four of the key players on the St. Louis Browns' pennant drive have been taking their final cuts for the first game of the series today. Left to right, Vern Stephens, short; George McQuinn, first base; Don Gutteridge, second base, and Chet Laabs, outfielder.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 4—The time for talking has passed. The time for shooting is at hand.

The St. Louis Browns, 100-1 shot pennant winners in the American League, and the St. Louis Cardinals, 1-100 shot pennant winners in the National League, start setting off the fireworks in the 40th annual World Series out at Sportsman's Park at 2 p. m. (CWT).

Despite ODT restrictions, despite gas rationing, despite intercity rivalry, there'll be a packed house of 38,000 on hand when big burly, defiant Mort Cooper, 22 victory Cardinal ace, steps out to duel tall, shy, retiring Denny Galehouse, surprised starter for the Browns. There'd be twice that many if sufficient seats were available.

ONLY LANDIS MISSING

In other words, this third wartime World Series will be staged in a peace-time setting, with all the customary pomp, pageantry, noise, excitement, interest and everything else, save the familar spectacle of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, leaning head on hand, peering out from a field box.

A trade mark of every World Series since he became Czar of the game more than two decades ago, the Commissioner's bushy white mane and hobo hat will be missing from the picture. The judge, confined to a Chicago hospital, is reportedly too ill to attend.

Maybe he isn't ill, at all. Maybe he's just being smart and staying away to avoid the danger of a heart attack.

For this series could provide a serious epidemic of cardiac cases in the big league family.

The Cardinals, three-in-a-row winners of the National League bunting, which they sewed up by a 14½ game margin this year, are 2 to 1 favorites over the Brownie bunch, who on the last day of the season won the first American League championship in the 42 year history of the club.

MORE HEART FAILURES DUE

And Brownie rooters, in spite of seeing their heroes win the flag with a last minute rush which carried them to 11 wins in their last 12 starts and to four straight triumphs over the Yankees in the final series of the race, are reluctant to back the Sewell crew even at those attractive odds. They hope for the best, these A. L. followers, but they fear the worst.

Yes, it will cause a lot of heart failures if the Brownies should up and win this one.

That little thing the Brownies, on cold dope, won't do, can't do.

They are a pennant winning team the war and nothing else made possible. They are composed of such pitchers Nelson Potter and Denny Galehouse from the Red Sox and Sig Jakucki from the sandlots; infielders George McQuinn from the Yanks, Don Guttridge from the Cards and Mark Christman from the Tigers; outfielders Gene Moore, from the Braves, Mike Kreevich from the White Sox, Chet Laabs from the Tigers, Mike Chartak from the Yanks.

Not one was ever before in a World Series. Not one, with the possible exception of shortstop Vern Stephens, is a star of the first magnitude. Only one is a .300 hitter. None is a 20 victory pitcher.

They're stacking up against a real pre-war aggregation. These Cardinals, with their Coopers, their Marion, their Musial, their Sanders, their Hopp, their Kurowski, their Wilks, their Lanier, their Brecheen, etcetera, compare favorably with any championship club of the past 10 years. They have three of the league's five leading hitters, the loop's three leading pitchers.

No, on paper, the Brownies haven't a chance.

But they didn't have a chance on paper when they slumped in mid-August to blow a seven-game lead and fall to third place by Labor Day.

They didn't have a chance on paper when with but three days of the race remaining and facing a four-game series with the Yanks, they were a game behind the Tigers, who had four games with the last place Senators.

BROWNS MAY FOOL 'EM

But here they are taking the field for the first game of the 1944 World Series this afternoon.

And, on that field, they might go right on performing miracles.

You can't sell the Cardinals short. They have the class and the power.

But, after what they've done, neither can you sell the Browns short. They have the momentum and the incentive.

It should be a thrilling series and a short one.

The Cards, at their best, figure to win in a hurry, with the dead-game Brownies offering the most bitter sort of resistance.

The Cards, at anything less than their best, should be completely overwhelmed by the inspired American Leaguers.

Physically, the Cards may not be at their strongest. Outfielder Danny Litwhiler, and Pitchers Max Lanier and Ted Wilks have ailments that may or may not keep them out of action. But Billy Southworth has so many good reserves he doesn't have to worry much.

Luke Sewell's Cinderellas are all in the pink and rearing to go.

The consensus among the Cards is that they'll win the series in six games.

The opinion of the Brownies is that they'll win it in four straight.

Anyway, we're about to find out what happens when a winning 100-1 shot stacks up against a winning 1-100 shot.

Nobody could ask for more in a World Series.

BULLETIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4 (INS)—A light rain fell on Sportsman's Park this morning, threatening to wash out the first game of the 1944 World Series today between the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns.

The weather bureau, changing its prediction for the third time in eight hours, forecast "occasional rain or drizzle" for today.

Continued rain would result in the opening game being set back until tomorrow.

The prediction for tomorrow was less encouraging. "Thursday partly cloudy to cloudy, preceded by rain in the morning," the weather bureau said.

Earlier, the weather bureau was optimistic: "Cooler and no rain."

Yanks' Sunday Foes Jammed With Stars

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Items of interest about the New York Giants, who open their league season against the Yanks Sunday at Fenway Park:

O'Neale Adams, end from Arkansas, is rated the best receiver to enter the league since Don Hutson joined Green Bay. In an exhibition game against the Redskins, he intercepted a pass and galloped 64 yards for the winning TD. He stands 6-3, weighs 195. Was a basketball star in college . . . The Giants are a team of specialists: Ken Strong has been called out of retirement to do the place-kicking, Arnold Herber to do the forward passing. Strong booted two field goals in a recent exhibition game. Now Ward Cuff, another field goal star, has come back to the Giants from the Army. Billy Paschal, league ground-gaining champion, played only three minutes of college football, and that as a freshman. Paschal does nothing except carry the ball. Hank Soar, on the other hand, plays only defensively . . .

GIANTS' LINE STURDY

The Giants' pride and joy is their line, to wit: O'Neale Adams and Frank Liebel, ends; Frank Cope and Vic Carroll, tackles; Len Younce and Charlie Avedisian, guards; Bill Piccolo, center . . . Veteran backs are: Cuff, Soar, Paschal, Hubeth Barker, Carl Kinscherf, Joe Sulaitis. Most promising of the newcomers are Howard Livingston, 190-pounder from the Hollywood Bears; Roy Clay, tailback from Colorado; Bill Petrilas, purchased from the Chi Bears, and Keith Beebe, from Occidental College . . . Paschal gained 572 yards in 147 carries in '43 . . . Steve Owen, 45-year-old, 275-pound Giants' coach, was a riding champion at 12 in his native Oklahoma, had visions of becoming a jockey, but put on so much weight he became a football star instead. He weighed 220 when he played tackle for Phillips College. He's been coaching the Giants since 1930, has led them to two world championships, six eastern titles. He captained the 1927 Giants' team that gave opponents only 20 points in 13 games. Only George Halas, Bears, and Curly Lambeau, Green Bay, have been managing N. L. teams longer than Owen.

★ ★ ★

Dave Smukler has contracted cold, and George Cafego is likely to start at fullback for the Yanks Sunday. Cafego is a much improved runner since he shifted from the qb spot . . . The Yanks may practice in the p. m. tomorrow so that Thron Riggs, tackle, can get a full workout. He's looking for France's job and is not far away from it . . . The Yanks are still working out in Brookline, on a field that has neither goal posts nor gridiron stripes . . . Jim Magee, who attends every practice session, may get the call over week-ender Walter Dubzinski at center . . . Movies of the Eagles-Yanks game show Cafego outstanding in the backfield, Lio in the line—for our side.

Keith Academy and Lowell High Magnet

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Late last fall Coach Spencer Sullivan popped up with one of the biggest surprises of the schoolboy sports campaign when he shifted his grid equipment from Lowell High School to city rival Keith Academy. Now Coach Sullivan has popped up with one of the nicest surprises of the present season with this same Keith club soaring to the top of the football bottle.

Not only has Keith won its three starts this fall but the boys of Coach Sullivan have been winning them in crowd-pleasing ways—through the air—so that the town has gone wild.

To date, Keith has trounced a heavier St. John's High of Worcester (25-0); slipped through a clever Leominster eleven (13-7) and then bounded back to giant figures in swamping Mission High of Roxbury (33-0) while using every player on the squad and an entire second team in the final period. Woburn will be next on the schedule this Saturday afternoon to be followed by Malden Catholic then the bitter Lowell clash on the 22d and Somerville the following week.

HE HAS SOMETHING

"We've got a pretty good ball club," says Coach Sullivan, "and we've worked for it. We started with blackboard drills last February, moved outdoors for four weeks in the spring and started fall work Aug. 22. I was brought over here to build a football team and that's just what I'm going to do with a swell bunch of kids who deserve to win."

In packing, Coach Sullivan picked up a left-halfback, Jimmy Sullivan, from the Lowell High squad and this namesake is the only newcomer to the team which dropped nine straight last year. These Sullivans have been buddies for years now, Jimmy originally giving up plans to go to Keith so that he could play for Coach Sullivan. The transfer to the school of his choice was not an unwelcome one.

As could be expected, Jimmy Sullivan took over the left-half back starting post in his coach's double wing offensive to complete a first string quartet of passers. Sullivan's inability to punt deprives the Keith backfield of all triple-threat-men as Quarterback Tommy McCarthy, Halfback Jack Campbell, a southpaw, and Fullback Jerry Riley handle all assignments.

The line, averaging 168-pounds, is a hard-charging unity. Jack Meagher and Harry Greeves are on the wings; Bill Hodgson and Pete King at the tackles; Tom Shannon and Bill Furey in the guards with Frank Jzedulonis at center. All but Meagher and Shannon will be back on Keith's front wall next fall.

KEITH VS. LOWELL MAGNET

Players who will see plenty of action this season list ends; Fred Day and Don Finnegan; tackles, Bill Killoy and Jack Welch; guards, Dan Moriarty and Jim McCarthy; Fred Drescher at center and in the backfield, and backs Bob Maguire and Red Finnerty.

They're making plans for the biggest crowd in schoolboy history for the Keith-Lowell game at the Stadium and it should be a thriller. Coach Sullivan wants to win this one more than any other on his entire schedule. And the high school fans must feel the same way about it as they watch Keith's grid stock climb.

Snappy Notes About Series

By BEN F. PHLEGAR

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4 (AP)—Weatherman Harry Wahlgren took no chances of making a false prediction on the atmospheric conditions for today's opener. He went on his vacation and left the forecasting job up to his assistant.

Although this is the third straight series for the Cardinals, eight of their 22 eligible players will be competing in the classic for the first time. They are Pitchers Bud Byerly, Ted Wilks, Fred Schmidt, Al Jurisich and Blix Donnelly; Outfielder Augie Bergamo, Infielder Emil Verban Martin, the old "Wild Horse of the Osage," is tops in series experience. This makes his fourth.

A federal grand jury in town voted a week's recess yesterday. U. S. Dist. Atty. Harry Blanton explained the jurors wanted to be sure to see the ball games.

Frankie Crespi, former Redbird second baseman now in the Army, is here for the big affair. Upon his arrival yesterday he learned that his brother, Angelo, is missing in action in Italy.

Jimmy Gazeleuse, the Browns starting pitcher for the first game, has a lifetime major league record of 81 victories and 88 defeats. His opponent today, Mort Cooper, owns 109 triumphs and 50 defeats. Galehouse broke into the big leagues with Cleveland in the fall of 1935.

PFC Pete Reiser, who won the National League batting championship in 1941 while with the Brooklyn Dodgers, watched the Browns work out yesterday without changing his National League prejudice. Reiser is stationed at Ft. Riley, Kan. His home is in St. Louis.

Luke Sewell had a hard time getting his ball players back to the club house after yesterday's press rehearsal workout. "These boys just want to play ball," Sewell said.

Press Chairman Glen Wallar reports tickets have been issued to over 400 sports writers and newspaper and motion picture photographers who will send reports on this first west-of-the-Mississippi series to all parts of the world. Service papers and magazines have sent staff men from every war theater to tell the story personally to American fighting men.

The Lost Weekend

THE RONDO was finished. Don got out the 1st Movement and went to his chair again. A dream indeed. Comic, to be sure; ridiculous, childish; but most musical, melancholy. . . .

He turned the volume button up full. Let the ladies in the front apartment pound on the wall, let their dog, Sophie, bark her silly head off, this was Music! Then, suddenly, he was very hungry. Why wouldn't he be? Wasn't it noon? Besides, he hadn't eaten a thing all day yesterday after his breakfast with Wick.

Ordinarily he never thought of food when he was drinking. This proved he wasn't tight at all if he was thinking of food. He'd go get a sandwich or two at the delicatessen.

Nearing the store, he passed a movie. My God, Garbo! In Camille no less. He looked at the stills tacked up on a board outside. He'd already seen it three times but he loved it and he slid his quarter under the glass and went in.

Upstairs, he groped his way to a seat near the front and stared at the screen. Two men in drab cotton jumpers sat at a wooden table peeling potatoes. Damn it, a prison picture. Double feature? Why hadn't he found out? He decided to doze until Garbo came on and he slumped in his chair. . . .

A burst of machineguns knocked him nearly out of his seat. What was going on—where the hell was he? He gripped the chair and stared. The screen exploded in noise—a prison break—dut-dut-dut-dut-dut-dut.

Had he been asleep? How long? An illuminated clock said two-fifteen. This couldn't last much longer. Garbo would be on any minute. But suddenly he couldn't wait, either. He grabbed up his hat and left, stopping in at the bar next door for a drink.

"Hi, Jack," the bartender said.

Oh sure. This was the one he'd been in before. The guy must be feeling better, he actually spoke. To hell with him. He drank the drink and looked around.

This was no place to hang around in. What did it offer? Sam's was better. Sam was better too. He paid and left.

Sam was a philosopher but he didn't feel like talking philosophy today. He asked, "Where's Gloria?"

Sam said, "She'll be here in a minute. Rye?"

"And soda. Some ice."

"My, that isn't like you. You always take it straight."

"I feel like spreading it a little today . . ."

B. C. Adds Strength For Harvard Game

Regardless of the ranting of the critics in regard to the strength of Harvard, the informal Boston College Eagles continue their final workouts in preparation for the opening game with the Crimson at the Stadium confident of victory.

Harvard has compiled an impressive record so far this season by rolling over Tufts, Bates and Worcester Tech in that order but the Eagles will enter the Stadium set on making the first blemish on the Cambridgemen's victory streak.

In the past week the Heightsmen have added Tom Seymore and John Rabett, two fast and shifty halfbacks, who are native New Yorkers but are now studying at the Heights. Gene Ratto, rugged fullback, who was sparkplug and captain of last season's Dorchester High eleven, has also reported for practice but it seems impossible that these three capable backfield men can master the tricky T formation in time for the all important opener.

The Maroon and Gold line is strong and heavy and can be assured of making an interesting afternoon for the highly lauded Harvard forward wall. The starting backfield, although light, is a shifty aggregation of ball-carriers capable of breaking the game wide open with the fast opening plays of the T.

Hub Schoolboys in Twin Bill Today

Another twin bill is on the schedule for this afternoon at Braves Field, with Brighton facing Brandeis Vocational in the opener and Hyde Park meeting Charlestown in the nightcap.

HEALTH QUIZ

	YES	NO
Do you have poor digestion?	□	□
Do you feel headachy after eating?	□	□
Do you get sour or upset easily?	□	□
Do you feel tired—listless?	□	□

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly often in as little as 30 minutes. And you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any druggists. Only 10¢ and 25¢.

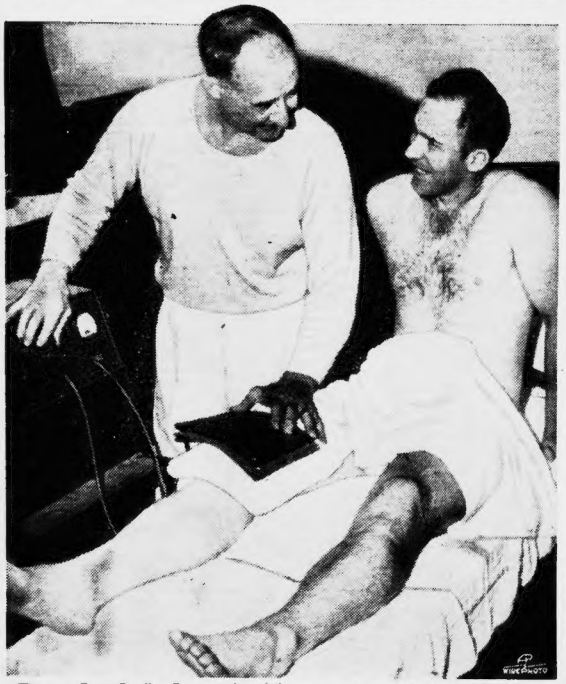
After Bleacher Seats—These hardy bleacherites, who converged on Sportsman's Park early yesterday, were the first into the field today for the opening game of the World Series between the St. Louis Browns and Cardinals. Charles Chappell (left) is first in line and Ralph Belcore, a Chicago fan, second.



Doubtful—Danny Litwhiler, Cards' left fielder, is treated for an ailing leg by Doc Weaver in an effort to get in shape for today's opener. He's the only doubtful starter.
